

MarComm has been operating on an 'as-submitted-project' basis, with completion timelines determined by the importance of each project and any queue jumper emerging priorities. The decision not to complete a project is never based on preference, but rather on its significance and the time available. I am committed to ensuring all tasks within my bandwidth are addressed, though I acknowledge that I have taken on more than I can manage, leading to some projects being overlooked. For that, I sincerely apologize.

To address this, I am developing a GateKeeper system, which I will refine as needed to ensure its effectiveness. This system aims to provide clear direction for submissions and, if declined, an explanation for the decision. My goal is to provide clarity with the following information to help alleviate any concerns about incomplete tasks.

If you submit a project and would like to keep up with progress, make comments, etc. we can create a report for you specifically.
